Village Schools

by Laura Bacci Merhaut

Cuyahoga Heights Public Schools anchor not only our village, but also those of Brooklyn Heights and Valley View

The strength of Cuyahoga Heights Village's commitment to future generations in support of our schools and the foundation they provide underpins, builds and helps us to retain a strong and vital community. From Pre-K to Grade 12, Cuyahoga Heights Schools prepares our youngsters for bright futures. Whether via the traditional route with a focus on college preparatory classes or a mix of coursework combined with the varied classes at the Cuyahoga Valley Career Center, we are proud to be a partner to our local schools.

Our school ranks high among area schools and has received innumerable accolades, awards and recognition for its ability to provide an excellent, well-rounded education for our students. Built in 1938, we marked its 50th anniversary in 1988. Some of the history and program documents, which compare and contrast the beginning and later times, are included on the scrapbook pages in this section.

An Overview by Superintendent Tom Evans

The Cuyahoga Heights School District first opened its doors in 1938, with its original task to supply the greater Cleveland area with skilled workers in the post-depression era. The ground floor of the school was composed of the machine shop, wood shop, electrical shop, as well as a foundry. The district later added a greenhouse and multiple business classes to meet the needs of the growing Greater Cleveland area and its commerce. As noted earlier, Cuyahoga Heights School District serves the communities of Cuyahoga Heights, Brooklyn Heights and Valley View and most recently has developed a tuition program to provide high quality education to students outside of the community borders.

In 1955, the elementary building opened as the district expanded. Today, the two buildings have undergone multiple renovations and expansions to serve the 800 plus students of the district. In 1972, the Cuyahoga Valley Career Center opened to offer career technical training to eight area school districts, including Cuyahoga Heights Schools.

Cuyahoga Heights has a long-standing history of success academically, athletically and in the arts. Our high school annually sends 90% of its graduates on to postsecondary education. In the 1990s, Advanced Placement (AP) courses were added to the curriculum at Cuyahoga Heights with 12 classes currently being offered. The AP Honor Roll has been in existence for eight years and our district has been recognized as an Honor Roll District twice in the last five years.

Cuyahoga Heights Schools have been recognized by U.S. News and World Report for its academic excellence. The high school has also been recognized as a National Blue Ribbon School of Excellence by the Department of Education, as well as a Blue Ribbon Lighthouse School of Excellence Incorporated, which was awarded to each of the district's schools. Cuyahoga Heights annually rates in the top 10% of all school districts in the state of Ohio, regardless of the metric used.

Our schools also boast a strong arts program, with students annually participating and being recognized by participating in the Scholastic Art Competition, Governor's Show, as well as the Day of Arts at the Beck Center in Lakewood which highlights the arts in many different forms.

The Cuyahoga Heights Schools Music Department has been recognized by the National Association of Music Merchants for 13 straight years. No other district in Cuyahoga County has received such accolades, with students being recognized in solo and ensemble competition as well.

Athletics have long been a strong suit of this small district with a State Wrestling Coaches Association Dual Meet Team Championship in 2010, State Runner-ups in track in 1954 and 1967, two state runner-up finishes in football in 2016 and 2017. There were also three final four appearances in baseball, with runner-up finishes in 1976 and 2012. The softball team made two final four appearances along with bringing home the district's only OHSAA State Title in 2014. Cuyahoga Heights Schools boast many "all state" performers in almost every one of our 21 varsity sports.

The district is proud of its outstanding alumni contributions to the world of sports as well in Flip Saunders, Class of 1973 who went on to coach the Pistons, Wizards and Timberwolves in the NBA. Jack Squirek, Class of 1977 had an interception for the Los Angeles Raiders in the 1983 Super Bowl victory for the Raiders and Kelli Stack, Class of 2006, is a two-time Olympic Silver Medalist representing the United States in 2010 and 2014.

School Musings by Norbert Chase

My older sister and brother went to Immaculate Heart School on Lansing Avenue. I went to Harvard Public School on Harvard Avenue, along with other kids from Cuyahoga Heights.

I graduated from Harvard Public School and went to junior high at Albert Bushnell Hart School on Broadway, and then to South High School for my final high school years on Worley Avenue in Cleveland, Ohio, just east of East 71st Street.

Cuyahoga Heights High School was built and opened in 1938 with the first graduating class in 1939. The school was built on a plot that was a huge old farm on a high hill. When the farmer died, an Italian family named Corradi moved in, but they left, went back to Italy and later the school was built.

Remembrances of the 75th Anniversary of Cuyahoga Heights Schools

The Cuyahoga Heights Alumni Association celebrated the 75th anniversary of Cuyahoga Heights Schools by hosting an evening of reminiscing, reconnecting and entertainment from our many talented classmates. The event was attended by over 200 graduates from the classes of 1940s to the 1990s.

A group picture was taken in the boy's gymnasium and everyone then retired to the auditorium to enjoy the musical renditions from our classmate entertainer from the 1950s, 1960s and 1970s. The performance included popular tunes and original compositions of the performers. The final musical composition was called "Memories of Cuyahoga Heights School and the First Teacher" and it mentioned names such as Miss West, Mr. Baumgardner and Oh yes, Mr. Jacobs.

Tours of the school were given by current Cuyahoga Heights High School students and many classmates enjoyed talking to the 1st cheerleader, Erma Braun Bly from the Class of 1939. Principal Evans presented her with a certificate of accomplishment along with a lifetime pass to any sporting event hosted at the schools.

We had 12 classmates who came from as far as California and Texas to enjoy the festivities.

NOTE: This program is divided into two sections: 1938 and 1988. The 1938 text is an exact duplicate of the December 16, 1938, dedication program. The 1988 text reflects the changes that have occurred since 1938.

History

The creation of the present Cuyahoga Heights Village School District resulted from ideas conceived by some industrialists in Cuyahoga Heights and some influential citizens of both Cuyahoga Heights and Valley View. A meeting of all citizens of these districts was called and Assistant Director of Education E. N. Dietrich, was invited to discuss the proposition. Subsequent meetings were conducted to give ample opportunity for all citizens of both villages to be thoroughly informed.

The Boards of Education of the Cuyahoga Heights Village School District and the Valley View School District each presented a petition to the County Board of Education on December 14, 1936, asking that the two districts be consolidated into one school district. The petitions were signed by a large majority of the residents of both districts. Consolidation became effective March 24, 1937.

The voters approved a $500,000 bond issue at the November election. Leo J. Schmidt, Inc., was awarded the building contract, work was begun in March, 1938, and school opened September 19, 1938.

At present, the Cuyahoga Heights School District is composed of the aforementioned school district and Brooklyn Heights Village School District. This district was transferred by action of the County Board of Education acting in conformity to a petition presented July 11, 1938, by the Board of Education of Brooklyn Heights Village School District.

The law firm of Locher, Green and Woods represented the village of Cuyahoga Heights and a number of businesses within the village in a study for the creation of a separate school district. The firm was likewise involved in the acquisition of the property and the development of bids for the first building. It was also directly involved with the issuance of bonds for the first building, and in the communication with the Cleveland Board of Education regarding transportation and tuition for students who were still attending the Cleveland schools before the building was first constructed. This firm, which is now Kelley, McCann and Livingstone, has represented the School District for the fifty years, and even earlier, to the period when the District was just becoming a separate school district.

For 50 years, the Cuyahoga Heights School District has been composed of the villages of Brooklyn Heights, Cuyahoga Heights, and Valley View. The district was conceived by industrialists and, even today, a representative of the Manufacturer's Association still attends the monthly Board of Education meetings.

The Building

The constant purpose of Messrs. Fox and Duthie, the architects who designed our school building, was to make it one of the nation's outstanding examples of school architecture. The finished structure speaks for itself and it has already attracted the attention of other school authorities and school architects.

The Georgian style was chosen because of its inherent beauty and dignity and because it is America's chief architectural heritage. Time and again since the Independence Hall of colonial times the Georgian style has been chosen for America's important buildings. Especially to be noted in the design is the fine composition of masses and the simplicity of detail.

The two largest units, the Auditorium and Gymnasium, were given their particular location so that they, together with the intervening main entrance lobby, would create the dominant mass of the design. Note how effective the result with the central focal point accented by the circular portico, the pediment and tower; the rhythm of the rows of arched windows flanking the central motive, the long roof line terminated by massive chimneys.

The plan embodies the latest developments of Educational authorities, and in all respects was carefully studied to efficiently house a modern school organization.

Since 1938, the size and number of the buildings has increased. The receiving room, a classroom, a clerk's office, and an elevator were added in 1945. A separate elementary school was built in 1950. An addition to the elementary school was built in 1955. The first high school addition of six classrooms, two athletic locker rooms, a reading lab, and additional library space were added in 1957. The garage was built in 1958. Football seating and the boys shower was added in 1960. The cafeteria, boys gym, locker rooms, science department, business department, art room, home economics classrooms, and steam generators were added to the high school in 1962. There was an addition to the garage and the construction of an all-weather track in 1968. The new high school media center, elementary school cafeteria, high school industrial arts classrooms, elementary school library, as well as new electrical wiring, fire detection system, and a new clock and bell system were added in 1971. The swimming pool and auxiliary gym were built in 1977.

The high school and pool additions reflect a more modern style, yet have maintained the brick facade, which blends with the original structure and style. The elementary school also reflects the same architectural style as the original high school building.

The central focal point of the high school is the tower and the pillared entrance. The east side of the elementary building demonstrates a certain prominence as evidenced by the arch and recessed entrance doors. The simplicity of structure is such that it blends with the original style of the high school.

Philosophy

We are attempting, in Cuyahoga Heights School, to provide an environment in which each pupil will find zestful living while he is building his body, developing social techniques, acquiring knowledge and gaining understanding. Each individual is encouraged and guided in studying himself so as to bolster his weaknesses. The climate of the school is designed to stimulate every boy and every girl to develop a sound philosophy of life which, though thoroughly dynamic, will give him stability in his relationships with people and things.

To those students who are going on to other schools we are offering preparatory courses. For the larger group — who will not go on to other schools — we are providing vocational information, are giving them some vocational education, and will make a vigorous effort to place them in gainful employment. To some who neither go on to school nor obtain employment we shall offer additional training after the twelfth year designed to broaden their vocational capabilities.

The Board believes the following: education should contribute to the continuous improvement of the democratic society and cultures in which it exists through the development of concerned, contributing, and patriotic citizens; the dignity and worth of the individual should be respected and each individual should be given the opportunity to participate in our society to the best of his ability; basic knowledge, skills, understandings, and appreciations are necessary for full life functioning; the educational program should exist in an environment conducive to the continuous emotional, social, physical, and intellectual growth of students; the development and implementation of a design for continuous evaluation based upon stated goals and objectives is necessary for effective program revision and improvement; the continuous appraisal of the immediate and projected personal and societal needs of our students should be carried on to prepare them for a life of on-going growth; students should be introduced to the humanities, the arts, sciences, and vocational education, and provided the opportunity to pursue them; the development of self-appraisal skills and decision-making techniques by our students should help them in assuming the responsibility for setting realistic, immediate, and long-range academic and career goals; and the development of moral and ethical values on the part of our students is an important aspect of personal maturity, for which the parent would assume the primary responsibility; however, the schools should reinforce and expand upon the moral and ethical values which are accepted by the community.

The High School

The Junior High grades at Cuyahoga Heights are an integral part of the six-year high school organization and enjoy the full use of the specialized departments provided for the secondary school groups. Opportunity for mastery of the elementary skills is afforded. Major attention is paid to guidance — one member of the teaching staff being specifically assigned to this work. Of especial significance are the orientation courses required of all pupils — courses in which they are brought into contact with the fine and practical arts, not only the industrial arts but also the agricultural.

In the upper years of the secondary school pupils are offered three distinct courses:

- I. Basic. This course provides a general cultural background but stresses the practical arts.
- II. College Preparatory. The offerings in this sequence are designed for those pupils who plan to attend college.
- III. Commercial. Students who expect to enter business offices are encouraged to elect this course.

In the near future we hope to develop additional facilities for vocational education of our older pupils and for adults. The large unfinished area on the ground floor of the building was designed to house this project.

The Cuyahoga Heights High School continues to be a comprehensive six-year high school. Our educational program is very strong and helps prepare students for higher education or employment upon graduation. The school operates on the principle that cooperative efforts help create an environment that seeks to maximize individual achievements. This is accomplished in part through the varied curricular offerings that include: Art, Business Education, Computers, English, French and Spanish languages, Health and Physical Education, Home Economics, Industrial Arts, Mathematics, Music, Reading, Social Studies, and Science. There are also special programs for learning disabled and gifted students to help meet unique needs. There is an extensive library/media center available for staff and students.

In addition to the in-house academic phase, our school is a member of the Cuyahoga Valley Joint Vocational School. The intent of this program is to create opportunities for students to learn the necessary entry-level skills prior to obtaining a position in the respective student's career choice.

Cuyahoga Heights High School students are offered a very diverse and comprehensive program of activities to fit almost any need. This is evidenced by the interscholastic athletic program for both young men and women, student government, National Honor Society, school newspaper and yearbook publications, French and Spanish Clubs, Drama Club, band, choir, orchestra, and drug and alcohol programs.
